

3 Simple Tips

That Are Just Your Style

Happy Hoarder

You know when something's valuable. You see the potential in the paper scraps. You hang on to that extra fabric just in case. Here are some tips for organizing your treasures so you can find what you need when you need it.

Take Note!

Wouldn't it be great to see all of your bulletin board borders at a glance? A border storage pocket chart answers the call. Choose one with clear pockets, like the Carson-Dellosa Border Storage Pocket Chart (#900840). Add a large sticky note on each pocket with a description, sketch, or photo of the finished bulletin board and any matching cutouts. Instant organization!

Box It Up

Have you ever found the very gameboard you were looking for—yesterday—put away on the wrong shelf? It's tough to keep partner and independent games in order. Keep games for different skills or curriculum areas in easy-to-stack storage boxes. Clear boxes work best so the contents are easy to view. The Really Useful Boxes 4-liter clear plastic storage box has handles for moving from shelf to desk and back again with ease (#550455).

Keep It Together

Do you have items tucked in nooks and crannies all over your classroom? When it's time to introduce a topic, be ready with all your relevant charts and decoratives in one place. The Carson-Dellosa Deluxe Bulletin Board Storage bag has sturdy grommets for hanging up and a shoulder strap for convenient carrying (#532149). On the front of the bag, attach a sheet that lists the topic and skills for the items inside, followed by a list of the bag's contents. No more searching here and there for what you need—now it's in the bag!
